

KILLED WHEN HIT BY FAST TRAIN

Brakeman Albert Grissom Swings in Front of Train At Stony Gap, Md.

Within a short time before he was to have been married, Albert Grissom, 29, of 167 Seaton place northwest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Grissom, was killed yesterday morning when hit by a Baltimore-bound passenger train at Stony Gap, Md., near Camp Meade. The young man's fiancée is Miss Gladys Little, of Hyattsville, Md. Grissom is reported to have swung off a slowly moving freight train, on which he was a brakeman, into the path of the train which struck him. He was an ex-service man and a former student of the McKinley Manual Training School. Survivors besides the parents are a sister, Eugenia, and a brother, Wilfred.

MAY ASK PRESIDENT TO SAVE MAN'S LIFE

Unless President Wilson intervenes, James Henry Jackson, colored, will be executed at the District Jail one week from today. The crime he will expiate is the murder last spring of Miss Lillian Hood, of Tennessee, who came to this city to engage in war work. Superintendent Foster has already had the scaffold erected in what is known as the "new workhouse," near Congressional Cemetery. A motion to dismiss the appeal taken by counsel for Jackson has been made by Assistant U. S. Attorney Cromelin in the Court of Appeals. It is said counsel for the condemned man are considering making application to the President for executive clemency by commuting the sentence to life imprisonment because of the prisoner's alleged mental deficiency. Justice Siddons set the date of the execution at October 15.

MYSTERY MURDER TRIAL IS BEGUN

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 7.—A murder trial which promises to abound with all the sensation and mystery which attended the crime opened here today. George A. Long and Mrs. Isabel Parker, of Barre, were placed on trial charged with killing Mrs. Lucina Broadwell.

This community was startled May 3 last when Mrs. Broadwell's body, stripped of all clothing except shoes, stockings and gray kid gloves, was found in a clump of bushes on the outskirts of Barre. Her hands were tied behind her back with a strip of cloth torn from her dress. Her clothing was scattered on the ground nearby.

The State charges that the murder occurred after a quarrel at Mrs. Parker's lodging house at Barre. Mrs. Parker, it is charged, arranged a meeting there between Long and Mrs. Broadwell.

Had Liquor in Pellet Form; "With Fizz, Without Kick"

Several novel brands of "boozes" have been invented as substitutes for the real article, but it remained for Carlo F. G. Composti, an Italian, who appeared in Police Court yesterday, to introduce a drink "with the fizz, but without the kick." He was charged with violating the drug act by selling pellets that were guaranteed to make the purchaser "feel good all over." Composti was arrested in a Ninth street delicatessen establishment while trying to negotiate a bottle of the pellets for a supply of cigarettes. He said the stuff was particularly good as a brace on "the morning after," and would cure the most wild and woolly headache. As the pellets had not been analyzed to determine their composition, Judge Hardison dismissed the case.

IT HAPPENED ON THE HILL

"Strikers are resorting to violence and lawlessness and yet every member of the A. F. of L. will soon be paying money to support them," Senator Myers, of Montana, declared yesterday.

The Interstate Commerce Commission would be given authority to suspend State rates temporarily pending a hearing by an amendment to the Cummins railroad bill which the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee tentatively accepted yesterday.

An "anti-dumping" bill was introduced yesterday by Senator Smoot, Utah.

The bill is designed to prevent demoralization of American industry by flooding the United States with foreign goods sold below the cost of production plus a "fair" profit.

Secretary of War Baker yesterday "earnestly recommended" that the Chamberlain bill to grant amnesty and restore to the colors all soldiers, sailors and Marines convicted by court-martial be defeated.

Gas warfare should be preserved for use in time of war, Maj. Gen. Sibert, head of the chemical warfare service, told the House Military Affairs Committee yesterday.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee yesterday voted against conferring the permanent rank of admiral on Admiral W. S. Sims and Rear Admiral W. S. Benson. Instead, the committee amended the bill that recently passed the House, to have it provide for three vice admirals at an active salary of $12,000 a year and retired pay of $10,000.

Secretary Lansing appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday to urge continuance of the war time passport restriction until permanent legislation governing immigration can be enacted.

HARVARD FUND NOW $360,775

President-Emeritus Eliot Is To Address Rally Here Tomorrow.

The total in the local campaign to aid in raising a $1,000,000 endowment fund for Harvard University has jumped to $360,775, according to an announcement last night by Walter R. Tuckerman, chairman of the local executive committee in charge of the drive. Yesterday's subscriptions totaled $25,000, almost doubling the previous total. But two days remain to raise approximately $40,000. The total in the national drive stood at $2,745,875 at noon yesterday, according to a telegram received from New York City campaign headquarters by Judge Sidney Ballou, director of local publicity. Boston yesterday crawled ahead of New York in the keen competition going on between those two cities. The rest of the country has subscribed $400,000, with many sections still unheard from. Among the large subscriptions announced yesterday were those of Henry Walters, chairman of the board of directors of the Atlantic Coast Line and the L. & N., $50,000; Elihu Root Jr., $10,000; Amos T. French, of New York, $10,000; and Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, $5,000. The local rally at the University Club tomorrow night will be addressed by Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard; Dean Le Baron R. Briggs, Eliot Wadsworth, chairman of the national campaign; and Mr. Hallowell.

WAR MOTHERS URGED TO TAKE ONE NAME

Pennsylvania cities, strongly represented in the Mothers of Democracy, were prepared to make a vigorous fight in the floor of the convention for the retention of the name of Mothers of Democracy, in the event of the formation of a new national body consolidating the various patriotic groups. It seemed apparent that the only way to win was to insist that their name be perpetuated but that they have large voice in shaping the policy of the new national organization proposed. Spokesmen for the Mothers of Democracy believed that that organization had perfected the best organization of any of the several groups, and they contended that its rapid development was a result of the style name of the organization. Because of the voting strength of this group of delegates it was thought likely if the fight to retain the name Mothers of Democracy is successful, some of the officers of that body at least will be able to name some of the national ticket and have a say in the future policy of the organization which may be formed.

Many from Pennsylvania. Fully 400 women had registered as delegates from the Mothers of Democracy when the convention opened. The officers of the organization attending are: Mrs. Taylor Alderdice, of Pittsburgh, president; Mrs. Frank Black, of Philadelphia, vice president; Mrs. George W. Collins, of Myerstown, Pa., second vice president; Mrs. J. L. Autenreith, of Aspinwall, Pa., third vice president; Mrs. W. H. Newmyer, of Bellevue, Pa., secretary; and Mrs. A. McKelway.

Many of the delegates regretted when a message was read announcing that Mrs. Fred A. Johnson, of Pittsburgh, could not attend because of illness in her family. Mrs. Johnson is prominently identified with many war work organizations and philanthropic projects. She is now serving as treasurer of the Mothers of Democracy of Pennsylvania.

Others registered from the Mothers of Democracy of Pennsylvania were: Mrs. W. H. E. Canonsburg; Mrs. H. C. Pittsburg; Mrs. Lewis Stinebaugh; Mrs. B. W. Hutcheson; Mrs. E. O. Kane; Mrs. Kane, Pa.; Mrs. George F. Parver, of Greentown; Mrs. W. R. Clasper, of Connelville; Mrs. Lewis Stahl, of Allentown.

Mrs. Alderdice prominent. One of the outstanding figures among the hundreds of women attending the war mothers' convention is Mrs. Taylor Alderdice, of Pittsburgh, Pa., president of the Mothers of Democracy of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Alderdice is prominent not only in the official personnel of patriotic movements, but occupies a unique position in society and club circles of her native State.

Mrs. Alderdice entertained the delegates with a discussion of her ideas of women's place today, now that the war is over, and she must again take up the burdens of peace. "One of the many sad features connected with the war," Mrs. Alderdice said, "has been the demoralization of the splendid organizations and working bodies of women formed among all classes and denominations. Last year the caucuses, the khaki uniforms, emergency aid suits, white aprons and suits of the surgical-dressing women, were seen everywhere. Now we are again back in the shirtwaist and skirt, the dotted veil and summer fur, the blue voile dress and summer fur. "It seems a pity that the women who met day after day at their chosen war work, not caring whether they worked next to society women, a laundress or shop girl, should now be back in their narrow circle, and again feeling the influences of old-time prejudices.

Much to be Accomplished. "Out of all this, however, there is one patriotic organization not only still alive, but growing in usefulness—the band known as the Mothers of Democracy. This organization developed from the 'cheer up' meetings started in February, 1918, coincident with the mothers' meeting of the 39th infantry. Only those who have worked in this organization from the beginning can place the real value on its worthwhileness. As the sons were one in point of service so the mothers were united by a bond of sympathetic understanding, of sorrow and patriotism. "There is nothing of a dignified character that the Mothers of Democracy cannot accomplish. The activities of the seventy-seven units vary according to the needs of their respective localities. The Mothers of Democracy received their State charter November 11, 1918, on that never-to-be-forgotten day when the armistice was signed, and the world wept with joy. Realizing that the endorsement of the government would be of great benefit, I carried to Senator Philander C. Knox, at Washington, the petition of representative women of Western Pennsylvania asking that a national charter be granted the Mothers of Democracy. Through Speaker Knox the bill was approved by the Committee on Military Affairs, and passed by the Senate July 2, 1919. With the stress of other matters the bill has not yet passed the House. We were anxious to see this bill go through the House, that we might be the first to receive a charter from Congress."

"SUCCOTH," JEWISH HOLIDAY, OBSERVED

Succoth, a Jewish holiday commemorating the sojourn of the Israelites in the wilderness after their departure from Egypt, will be observed in all Washington Hebrew congregations starting tonight and continuing until tomorrow evening.

According to the Old Testament, it was during the seven-day period in the wilderness that the Israelites dwelt in booths. The Washington Hebrew Congregation, Eighth street between H and I northwest, will have a specially constructed booth of fruits and vegetables on the altar in commemoration of this feature. At the conclusion of the services the fruits and vegetables will be sent to charitable institutions, as has been the custom in past years.

Rabbi Stern and Simon will conduct the services this evening and tomorrow morning. Children of the congregation will take part.

Rabbi Benjamin Grossman will conduct services at the Synagogue at Sixth and I streets northwest, and tomorrow morning will address the congregation, his subject being "The Succoth, the Universal Node to Mankind." Many families will erect booths in yards adjoining their homes and will take their meals in them for seven days.

SHANTUNG FIGHT TO OPEN TODAY

Senate Turns to Proposed Amendments on Chinese Province.

Through an agreement between Senator Lodge, the Republican leader and Senator Hitchcock, spokesman for the administration, the Senate yesterday gave practically all of its time to other matters and only about twenty minutes to the consideration of the treaty. A great many of the Senators spent the afternoon enjoying the most excellent golfing weather of the season.

The stage was set for the beginning of the fight over the Shantung amendments today, that portion of the treaty containing the provisions for the turning back of Shantung to China having been read, Senator France, of Maryland, and Senator Norris, of Nebraska, are expected to open the debate, both favoring the amendments. Senator Lodge will speak Thursday in support of the amendments.

The huge expenditures by the League to Enforce Peace for the purpose of manufacturing sentiment in the country in favor of the league of nations aroused a bitter debate in yesterday's "morning hour." Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut, started it by calling attention to large numbers of telegrams which have come to him from branches of the league, urging him to support the treaty without reservations or amendments. The Senator said it was evident that the League to Enforce Peace is spending a great deal of money to obtain signatures to these messages.
